The New York Herald and the Papacy The great merit of the Herald is its independence and fearlessness in politics and matters generally, and its peculiar independence in discussing religious affairs-a merit that no other great city journal of the United States has any real claims to, although there are streaks of light showing themselves in a few others. There is no question of the fact that the religious systems of the world have had me in political institutions, governments and civil society, than all other causes, Good people may and do belong to the various systems. The crew of a ship may be healthy and well disposed, whilst the officers are steering her on to rocks or quicksands, or it may be to some port where contagious pestilence will infect many. Individual Mohammedans, or Roman Catholies or what not, may be enlightened, pure in intention benevolent and charitable, but that does or reasonable, or conducive to the good of mankind, and may actually do much to damage peoples and governments wherever they prevail, as the history of the nations of Europe and Asia, and the republics of North and South America abundantly atreasoning. There is a reciprocal influence of national temperament and forms of government on national character. France, Spain, Italy and Ireland have suffered ter ribly from the religious systems which have dominated therein. Slowly ideas of religious liberty have spread among them from the outside world, ideas that never did and never could live inside the Papal sys tem, which has spewed them out always day. The time seems now at hand when religious liberty will be allowed more or

Exuberant Health

Is a blessing voucheafed to few. Eventhose who have been favored by natu with strong constitutions, and vigoro frames are apt to neglect the precaution means to preserve these precious endorments. Indeed, as a rule, the more health nd robust a men is, the more liberties he inclined to take with his own physique. is inclined to take with his own physique. It is some consolation to the naturally week and feeble to know that they can be so invigorated and built up, by a proper use of the means which science has placed at their disposal, as to have a much better channed for life, and exemptions from discars and pain, than the most athletic of their fellows who are foolish enough to suppose themselver invulnerable, and sot accordingly.

It is not too much to say that more than It is not too much to say the bald need half the people of the civilized world need an occasional tonic, to enable them to suppose a sealing upon their heddes and minds, which the fast life of this restless age occasions. In fact, a pure, wholesome, unevolting tonic is the grand desideratum of the husy millions, and they have the article in HOSTETTERS STOMACH BITTERS. It is a staminal medicine, I. e. it imparts permanent strength to weak systems and invigorates delicate constitutions. Its rejunation and its make have steadily increased. Competitive preparations have been introduced ad libitum, and, as far as the public is concerned, ud nauseum, in the hope of rivaling it; but they have all either perished in the attempt, or been left far reperished in the attempt, or been left far in the rear. It has been the great medical success of the present century, and it is quite certain that no proprietary misleine in this country is as wid-ly known, or as generally used.

Ten lightning presses, running incessant-

"Quits Ren Dewn."-How often is this and minds are same side. Mere stimulants do no good is such cases. There first effect is transient. The re-action disestrous. In TARRANT'S SELTZER APERIENT. the true remedy for this breaking down of physical energies, and the animal spirits is provided. It renovates and refreshes the assimilating organs and the nerves, while it carries off, without violence or pain, all the impurities which elog the bowels and viti-ate the blood. In indigestion, biliouences, constitution, nervous weakness, and hypochondrissis, it has no rival, except the water of the Seltz-r Spring itself, of which it s the exact and perfect equivalent."
